Innovative Fieldwork Design for the New Centennial

Fieldwork education is an integral part of student and practitioner professional development. Given the current landscape in occupational therapy practice and educational programs, matching students with fieldwork educators can be challenging. Join us for a day of reflection, exploration, expert panel discussions, small group sessions, and networking focusing on models of fieldwork education to consider implementing at your facility!

Learning Objectives:

- Discuss results and implications from a national survey of fieldwork educators
- Appreciate the variety of ‘traditional’ as well as innovative models of fieldwork supervision
- Explore strategies and potential benefits of implementing innovative approaches to fieldwork education
- Describe structures and processes that can support collaborative intra- and inter-professional Level I and Level II fieldwork
- Examine pilot study outcomes and next steps for a collaborative intraprofessional (OT/OTA) Level II fieldwork program
- Determine possible innovations to enhance your fieldwork education program

This conference is free and lunch is included.

Registration information will be sent electronically via email in late April.
